

Sextortion

Teachers

Motivate your students to use malware protection software and have installed the latest security updates of their operating system, thus reducing the chance of trojan malware to activate and control their camera

If your students have been exposed to online sexual abuse or extortion, show them how to keep evidence (i.e., screenshots, chats, e-mails) and close collaborate with their parents

Students

Use wisely the camera of your digital device and only with people you really know

Do not share, send or post online personal photos or videos with sensitive content

Parents

Help your children to enable all necessary privacy settings in social media apps to safely adjust what personal info will be public available

If your children have been exposed to online sexual abuse or extortion, try to make them feel comfortable about seeking help and protection
